Connecting standard Atari sound to SAVO
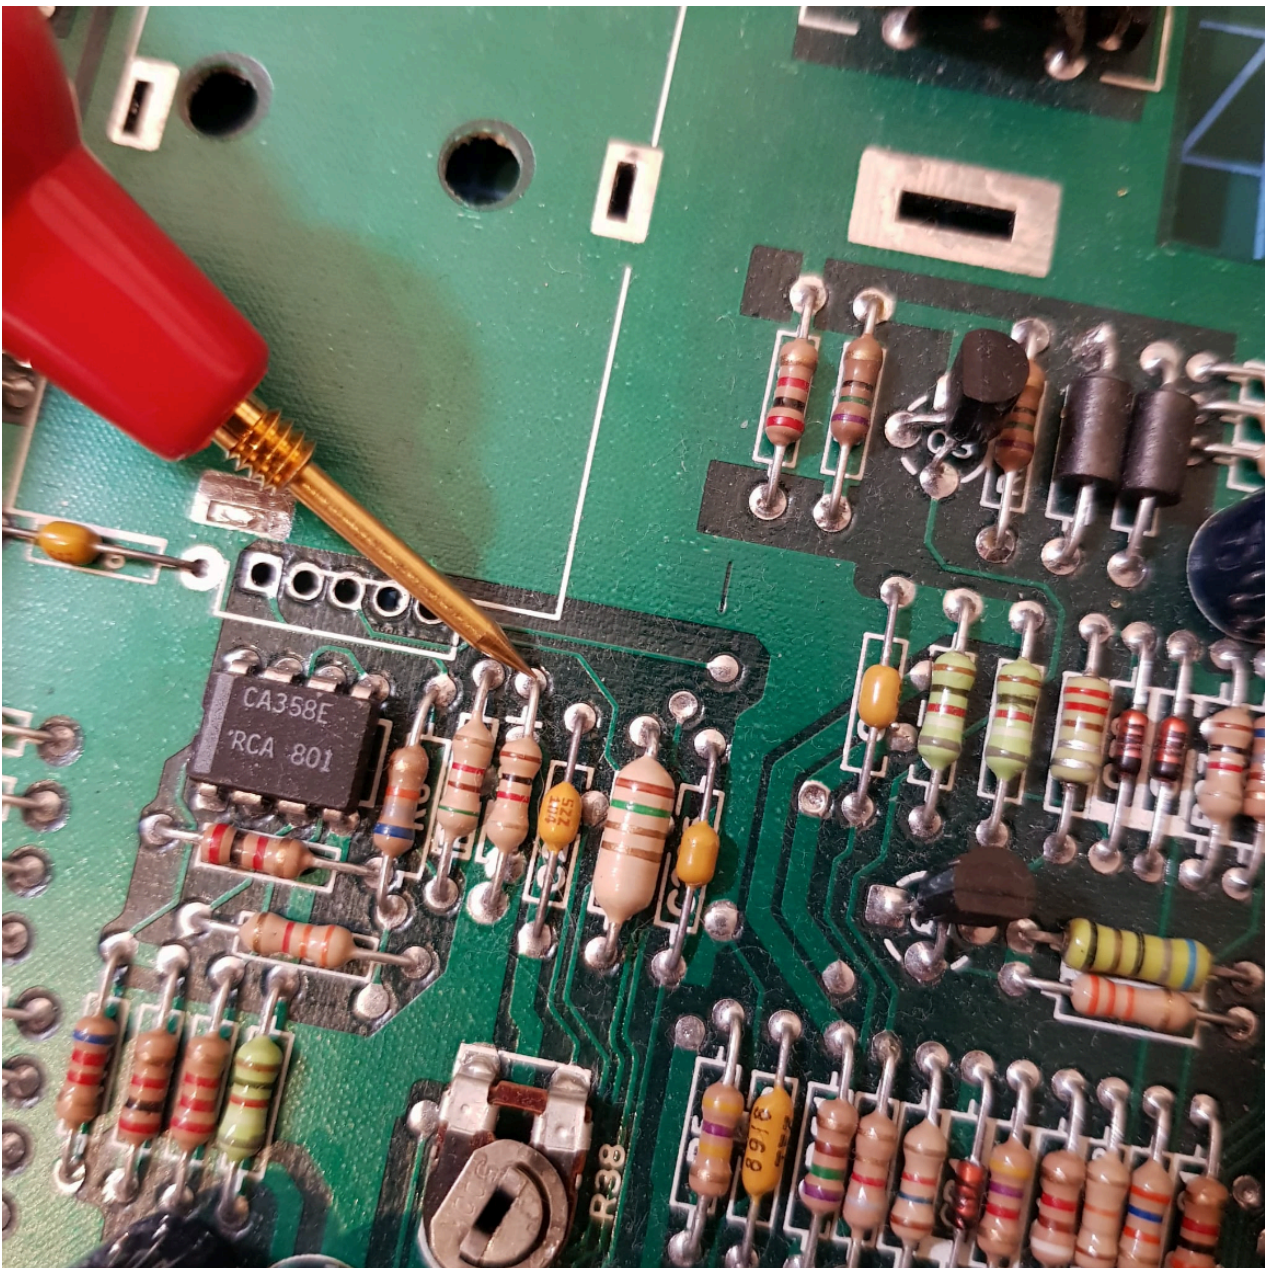

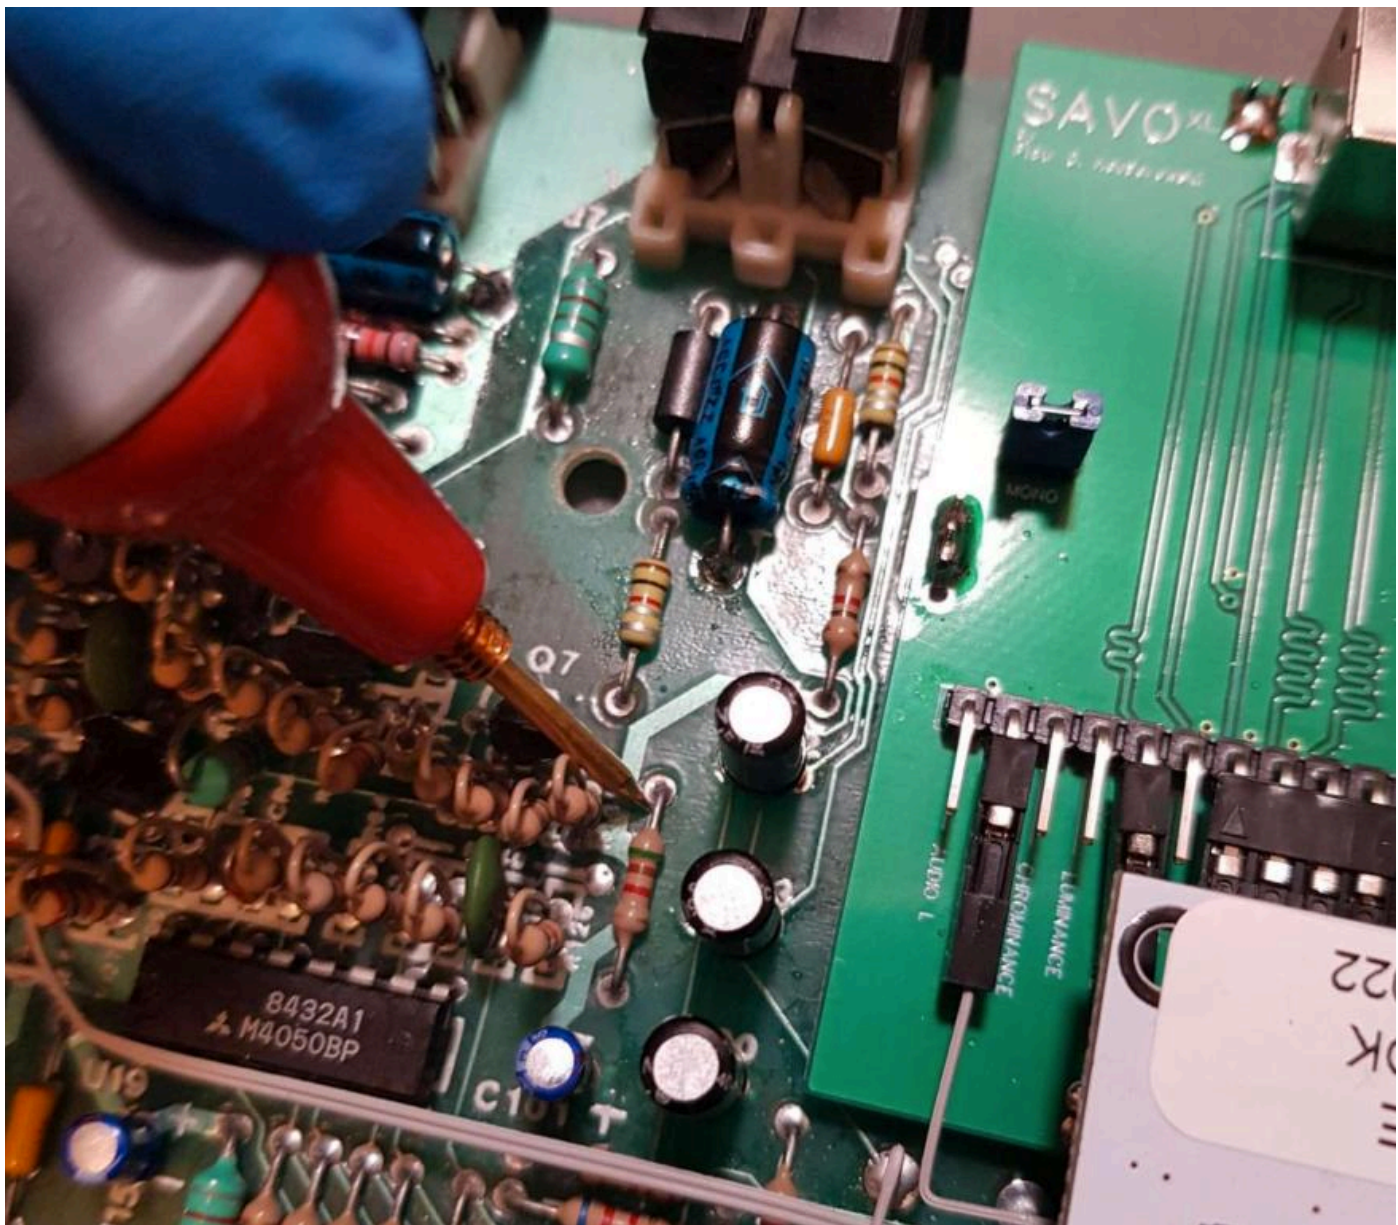

In the foundational document, we outlined how to connect the standard Atari sound to the SAVO boards using the point where sound feeds into the RF modulator. However, there's a more optimal location to source the sound from. This optimal point is the voltage divider situated after the operational amplifier, which blends sounds from various sources. The exact location of this point varies across different Atari models. The subsequent sections detail where these connections should be made.

ATARI 65XE/800XE/130XE:

ATARI 600XL:

ATARI 800XL: